

Net Tangible Assets & Monthly Investment Report

31 AUGUST 2018

Company commentary

- Macau casinos decline on continued China growth concerns
- Kunlun Energy advances after releasing strong first half result estimates
- Returns assisted by lower A$

MGM China and Wynn Resorts declined 12% and 11% respectively. The selloff was a continuation of the declines seen across in the sector in recent months rather than a reaction to new information. The market's growth expectations for Macau, relative to that of ours, have come back significantly and as a result we have recently increased our holdings within the sector.

Kunlun Energy advanced 21% after first half results beat consensus estimates by a wide margin, resulting in earnings estimates being raised circa 15% for next year. Kunlun continues to benefit from government policy supporting the adoption of natural gas over coal as the preferred energy source within China.

Base metal prices declined in August amid some fears about the trajectory of future global growth and the health of emerging markets. The copper price declined 6%, negatively affecting global copper producers including Turquoise Hill Resources which was down 16%.

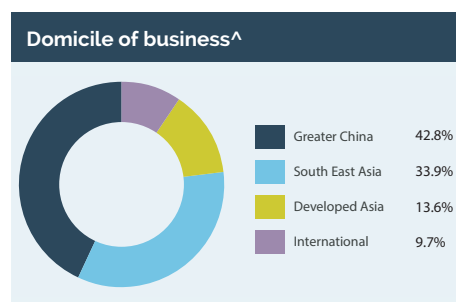

The Australian Dollar declined 3% against the US Dollar. This had a positive impact thanks to the portfolio's US Dollar and Hong Kong Dollar exposures. Movements in currency markets broadly reflected the same trends seen within the commodity markets, i.e., growth and emerging market fears.

Our experience has shown us that while the market is largely efficient, it can, and regularly does, misprice a small proportion of companies. Our unique process is based on scanning the world for those companies (hence the radar in our logo), discovering the associated valuation anomalies and extracting value from them. We buy good businesses at a good price; businesses that we believe are being valued differently to their long term intrinsic value, but will return to their correct value over time.
